

CLP Spring 2025 NEWSLETTER

COMMUNITY LAW PROJECT

CLP Highlights of the Season

As the rainy season comes to an end, we want to share a few highlights of our program with all of you.

Spotlight: Spring Student Presentations

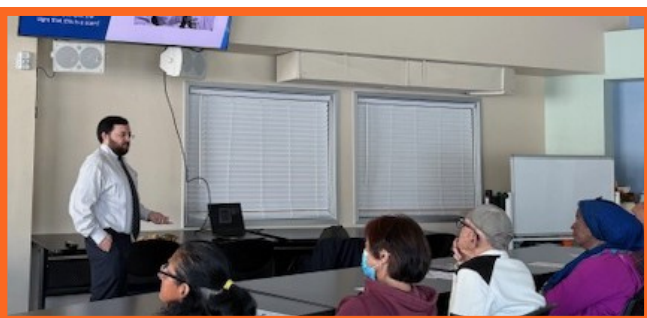

CLP students have completed the term, wrapping things up with the completion of their community education presentations. The locations of the presentations, as well as the topics presented, were varied but the common thread was the valuable information the students provided to the community. From protection against common consumer scams to information about the criminal expungement process and more, our students shared critical information with their respective audiences. We are proud of the hard work our students put in to educating various local communities.

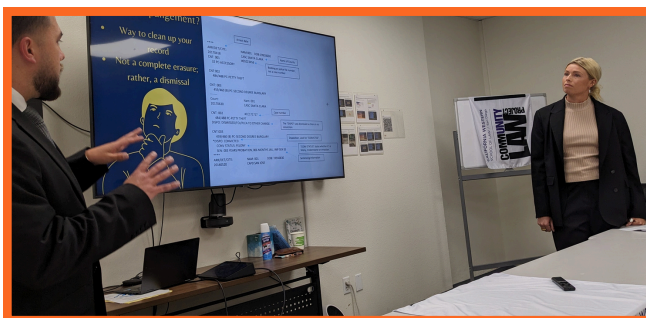

CLP students Sarah Hamrick and Jonathan Jordan presenting on immigration updates to community partners.

CLP students Eden Arthur and Ragan Fowzer educating youths at the Karen organization about their personal and civil rights.

CLP student Elijah Kastrul educating seniors on common consumers scams at Serving Seniors.

CLP students Thomas Tamayo and Caitlin Burns presenting to community members on expungements.

CLP Spring 2025

NEWSLETTER

COMMUNITY
LAW
PROJECT

A Closer Look: Highlights of the Term

Congratulations to our students for successfully completing the various components of our program, which included a visit to the San Diego Superior Court to learn more about the small claims process, a guided tour of the Family Law Facilitator Office and Unlawful Detainer Clinic, and an opportunity to hear from attorney panelists representing organizations that CLP works with on a regular basis. These highlights were on top of our regular class case rounds, coverage of important substantive legal issues, and the students' weekly clinic duties.

CLP students, interpreters and staff at a pop up legal clinic with a community partner.

CLP students and their professors take a field trip to the San Diego Superior Court to learn more about the self-help services available to the public.

CLP students providing services to community members at our community legal clinics.